

Florence Cornish

BIOGRAPHY

Food Blogger, Writer & Chef Florence Cornish was exposed to a variety of food and cultures from a young age when she and her family moved around the world, living in Singapore, Thailand, Indonesia, Florida and Belgium. They moved to England when she was 8, and Florence has been a Londoner ever since.

Her food style is clearly influenced by her upbringing, with a focus on Gourmet American dishes, as well as flavour inspiration from Asia and the Middle East.

Florence has always had entrepreneurial spirit, starting a small bakery business from her parent's kitchen aged 14. A History graduate of Goldsmiths College, Florence went on to study short courses at the London College of Fashion in Fashion journalism and took internships at publications such as Now, Marie Claire and The Times magazine, honing her exceptional writing skills.

Realising that her real passion is food rather than clothes, Florence became a chef at The Waldegrave Arms in Teddington and is currently training at Leith's School of Food and Wine.

Florence was a finalist in the River Cottage Rising Star Competition 2013, and writes her food blog at www.florencecornishcooks.com
